Project No. 070234

Sale Date - 5/4/2007

Question Submitted: 4/16/2007

Question Number: 1

The special provisions section provided with plans makes reference to the "design load, pull out requirements, soil and rock strength properties, ultimate bond strength, etc." The values and parameters are not shown on the plans. Further, the special provisions appear to be written for a soil nail and shotcrete wall application that is not shown on the plans. Can it be assumed that no verification or proof testing will be required for the permanent soil nails since there is no wall component to the design and no values or parameters are provided? If verification and proof testing are required of design A & C will these same values and parameters be required of design B & D and will items be added to cover these tests?

Question Number: 2

Addendum No.1 provided a link for revisions to the "Permanent Soil Nails" Special Provision and Soil Boring Logs for both locations. We are unable to open this link and it does not appear that an addenda folder for this project exists on the web-site. Please provide the information that was to be provided in addendum No. 1.

This has been corrected.
